RESIDENCE BADLY DAMAGED BY FIRE

The fire fiend paid another visit to our town last Wednesday afternoon at 4:25 o'clock, when the home of Mr. R. C. Clifford was burned completly destroying the furniture and and household effects. The building a one story cottage, was baddly damaged, all the inside walls being charred; also the front wall where the flames broke through the door and window. The building was owned by J. H. Wilson and we understand was not insured. Mr. Clifford carried $1500 insurance which will only partially cover his loss.

That a more serious conflagration was averted is due entirely to the prompt and efficient response of the citizen fire fighters. In a very short time after the alarm was turned in the chemicals and also the big fire hose were playing on the building which brought the fire under control in less than 10 minutes.

A combination of circumstnaces favored teh fire on that particular afternoon. It occured on the weekly half holiday, the business places were all closed and most of the men were out of town, many attending the I. O. O. F. picnic at the river. A high wind from the west was blowing. The adjoining building, the old police barrack, stands not two feet from the burning cottage. Then too the fire was caused by the ignition of gasoline with which Mrs. Clifford was washing clothes and therefore spread through the whole building with amazing rapidity.

Every Person is Coming July 1st

All is in readiness for a big full day's sport at Gleichen on Saturday and there is little more to add to what has already appeared in these columns concerning the success the Association hopes to make it

It cannot be said the various committies are "rearin to go" for they have been for sometime and still are going at top speed

Hundreds of copies of the excellent program have been distributed broadcast over the country and all who enjoy a good old-time day's sport are sure to be on hand when the event starts, which will be sharp at 1:30 Saturday afternoon, from that moment until your ready to quit dancing that night the time will be fully occupied

Everybody come and bring the kiddies.

One evening last week the Boy Scouts made a door-to-door canvas of Gleichen and disposed of 150 new flags which they will distribute on Friday, and ask that everyone who has a flag to fly it on Saturday. With the number already in town and 150 additional flags there should be a fine display Dominion Day. Keep the old flag waving.

DISTRICT AND LOCAL

Bert Robinson left Sunday with his wife and family, by auto, to visit his friend in Montana and will not return until fall.

Alds. Purcell and Michael accompanied by the latter's wife left by auto Sunday to spend a few days at Banff.

The hail insurance men have been been quite active since Monday's storm and perhaps not a bit more anxious than some farmers.

Complying with the request of the Board o Trade, a number of men are now busy in the C. P. R. park, and soon it will be one of the most attractive beauty spots this town can boast of.

Mrs. E.F. Wilson and family leave on Saturday to join her husband, who now resides in Detroit, Mich. They have resided in Gleichen several years and made many friends for themselves, who will very much regret their departure.

Monday afternoon a heavy rain fell south of the river, which proved of great value to those lucky enough to connect with it. However, quite a number were not so fortunate and hail damaged their crops badly, in some localities totally destroying the crops, a few of whom had neglected their hail insurance, it being very early for hail in these parts.

It seems that Gleichen is out of all luck this year so for as a good rain is concerned. At nearly every point of the compass from here rain is reported, but Gleichen remains dry with mere sprinklings. Neverless, there are some mighty good crops on summerfallow and breaking, while nearly every irrigationist is making the very best use of his ditches.This year year will no doubt be the banner year for irrigationists and those who have the water and prepared to use it are congratulating themselves while hard at work.

Suits at $26.95 is something new in Gleichen. Stabback & Brown's ad. tells you about it.

Is your home insured?

Three cars loaded with nine fishermen left Gleichen at midnight last Saturday and journeyed far into the Rocky Mountains when one car, loaded with the half dozen fish caught, broke down—"some fish,"— and had to be hauled all the way home, arriving at 4 a.m. Monday Well, it is a long story but not so fishy as some. Ask the fellows.

Mrs. J. Walls and Mrs. A. Read have returned from Rochester and all will be pleased to learn that Mrs. Walls is muched improved as a result of the treatment she received.

Friends of Phil Willett will be pleased to know that within 24 hours after the ad appeared in the Call asking for his addrss an answer was received. He is now a residen of Edmonton.

With a high wind blowing Hussar beat Gleichen on the local diamond last Wednesday, by a score of 24 to 19 or something equally as bad. The game was really a good one, but the wind blew the ball about so much that it was quite impossible for the boys to catch the many good ones offering. Hussar has a mighty good team this year and when they next visit Gleichen a big crowd will surely be present.

Jackson Made Up His Mind, Then Acted At Once, He Declares

"Tanlac has certainly backed up its reputation in my case," said Ernest Jackson, Greenwalde, Man., dental student in Winnipeg.

"I suffered from stomach trouble for two years and in spite of all the treatments and medicines I took I got worse all the time. My stomach was as sour as vinegar. I bloated terribly with gas and was so nauseated I could scarcely retain a thing of the little I ate. I had pains across my back too until it seemed like it would break.

"I made up my mind Tanlac was worth at least a trial, went ahead and took it, and began picking up right away. I kept on improving until now I feel as fine as I ever did in my life. I'm thankful a thousand times over for what Tanlac has done for me."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

The Canadian Budget

During the Great War and in the years since, men responsible for the administration of national finances the world over have been confronted with great difficulty in balancing their annual budgets. They have had to overcome obstacles of all kinds. War expenditures had resulted in piling up national debts to unprecedented heights, the interest charges on which alone called for enormous sums annually. Pensions, care of disabled soldiers, re-establishment of soldiers, call for further large sums each year. During the war years ordinary expenditures on capital account were discontinued, and with the close of the war many services were found to have deteriorated and called for large sums of money to make good the previous years' enforced neglect.

Larger revenues had, therefore, to be obtained and there was only one way to get the money—by increasing taxation. But taxation had to be imposed in such a way as to interefere as little as possible with business during the difficult period of re-adjustment from a war to a peace basis when the whole world was engaged in the task of reconstruction, when hundreds of thousands of people were ruined, and with unemployment of millions of men and women. Governments only exist by will of the people, and it always has to be recognized that there is a limit which any people will stand in the matter of taxation.

The problem facing finance ministers has been to raise the larger revenues needed without at the same time doing irreparable injury to the business interests of the country and thereby, in the final analysis, creating an even worse and more difficulty situation.

British Chancellors of the Exchequer went further than those of other countries in imposing heavy, even drastic, taxation. They proceeded to impose such taxation upon everybody, but more particularly upon the wealthier classes. The result has been that, for some years past, Great Britain has been steadily reducing its war debt, and in the last British budget it was possible, owing to drastic cuts in national expenditures and as a result of naval disarmament to a marked extent, to announce a beginning in reduction of taxation. In the United States, too, there has been a reduction in the national debt since the close of the war.

In Canada, on the other hand, the enormous debt created by the war, instead of being reduced in the years since the Armistice, has gone on steadily increasing. This has been due to the fact that the national revenues have failed to meet the extraordinary charges for interest on the debt, pensions, re-establishment of soldiers, and the heavy deficits on the national railways. The time had come when a halt had to be called to further increases in the debt unless it was to become a monster which would finally bring the Dominion to bankruptcy. Reduction in expenditures had to be insisted upon, and heavier taxation had to be imposed, but imposed in such a way as not to seriously interfere with business and the development of the country.

Hon. W. S. Fielding in his first budget since again assuming the office of finance minister appears to have taken a leaf out of the books of British ministers. Reductions in expenditure in many departments of government were notd in the Estimates, and even these were further reduced in the Commons, notably in the militia and naval departments. The budget now announces the imposition of increased taxation. There are certain reductions in Customs duties, principally by way of increases in the British preferential tariff, and there is a removal of a number of restrictions to trade which should prove beneficial all round, but from a revenue standpoint these reductions are more than offset by increased taxation in other ways.

It is in the form of raising this additional revenue that Mr. Fielding is following the example of British ministers. The much needed new revenue is to come from heavier taxation on luxuries, and upon transactions carried through by men and corporations of larger means and wealth. There are increased taxes imposed on liquors, both intoxicating and known as soft drinks, on the higher priced cigars and cigarettes, on automobiles, on bank cheques, telegrams and cablegrams, on the note circulation of banks, and through an increased sales tax. In other words, those people in the Dominion who are best able to pay are to be required to do so.

Of course, there will be criticism from all these quarters, and already associations representing this and that particular interest are demanding reconsideration by the Government of this and that tax. It must be recognized, however, that the Federal Government must obtain larger revenues. Canada dare not go on adding additional millions to the national debt every year. To do so would be to commit national suicide, because it would not be long before an ever-mounting debt would eat up the entire revenue in interest charges alone.

That being the case, it follows that those who can afford to indulge in luxuries, or who are in a position to issue large cheques where the average man issues only small ones or none at all, should be called upon to pay. It is the system which has helped Great Britain through the hard years following the war. It is the system that should be given a fair trial by Canada.

Placer Mining Being Revived

Present indications point to a considerable revival of placer mining in the Cariboo district. Gold mining is the most attractive mining enterprise at the present moment, because the cost of labor and supplies has dropped, and there is a sure market for the whole of the output. Several United States concerns have purchased and bonded placer leases, and already a good deal of machinery has been freighted to the respective claims.

Barrie's Advice to Youth

Time Has Arrived for Youth to Take a Partnership

Sir James M. Barrie delivered this month his first public oration, which he said would be his last. Nearly every London newspaper paid him the tribute of a verbatim report, an honor that would have fallen to only two or three other men in the Kingdom. The occasion was his installation as Rector of St. Andrews University, and his address was full of inimitable Barrie touches, which embroidered a serious and moving appeal. His theme was "Courage," and he exhorted Youth to practice "this lovely virtue—the rib of Himself that God sent down to His children." His advice to the younger generation to take their share in the direction of public and world affairs was conveyed in passages of searching irony:

"I want you to take up this position—that Youth have for too long left exclusively in our hands the decisions in national matters that are more vital to them than to us. Things about the next war, for instance, and why the last one ever had a beginning. The time has arrived for Youth to demand a partnership. The war and other happenings have shown us that age is not necessarily another name for sapience. . . . You have taken us off our pedestals because we look more natural on the ground. 'If Youth but only knew,' we used to teach you to sing; but now just because Youth has been to the war it wants to change the next line into, 'if Age had only to do.'

"Your Betters have done a big thing; we have taken Spring out of the year. And having done that, our leading people are amazed to find that the other seasons are not considering themselves as usual. The Spring of the year lies buried in the fields of France and elsewhere. By the time the next eruption comes it may be you who are responsible for it, and your sons who are in the lava. All because, perhaps, this year you let things slide.

"We are a nice and kindly people, but it is already evident that we are struggling back into the old grooves. We are too old for any others; that is the fundamental difference between us and you. We have no intention of giving you your share. Look around and see how much share Youth has now that the war is over. You got a handsome share while it lasted.

"The League of Nations is a very fine thing, but it can't save you, because it will be run by 'us. Beware your Betters bringing present. What is wanted is something run by yourselves. You have more in common with the Youth of other lands than Youth and Age can ever have with each other; even the hostile countries sent out many a son very like ours, from the some sort of homes, the same sort of universities, with the same sort of hearts, who had as little to do as our Youth had with the origin of the great adventure."

As a great practical beginning, he added, there ought to be a League of Youth. If the young preferred to leave things as they are, their elders would probably fail again. "Don't be too sure that we have learned our lesson and are not at this very moment doddering down some brimstone path." The hatreds and jealousies which are keeping continental Europe in a turmoil are a commentary on this advice and warning. In all countries Youth is reluctant to take its share of public duties and responsibilities, and it has itself to blame if the men who have decided the issues of peace and war in the past are those who were not called upon to do the fighting. Public life will be the healthier in every nation for an infusion of new blood, and the young people fresh from the universities should repay their country by leading the way. This is the idea Sir James Barrie strove to inculcate.

Rhubarb Grower Challenges World

The champion rhubarb grower of Kent, England, T. Dodd, of Wye, has for the twenty-ninth year in succession taken premier honors in a competition for outdoor-grown rhubarb.

Mr. Dodd, who is a jobbing gardener, produced this year, in spite of the cold weather, perfectly straight sticks of rhubarb thirty inches long and five inches in diameter. He says he is ready to show rhubarb in competition with the whole world.

Standing Timber on Vancouver Island

Speaking before the Vancouver Island Association Boards of Trade, E. W. Neel estimated the standing timber of Vancouver Island at 116,000,000,000 feet. In that portion of the island which includes the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway belt, the Renfrew district and Barkley Sound drainage basin, there are estimated to be 30 billion feet of Douglas fir and 13 billion b.m. feet of red cedar.

Blunders

A teacher had been annoyed by revelry in the hotel where she had spent her last vacation, took the precaution in writing to a hotel which had been recommended to her, to enquire whether it had a bar. She received the following reply: "No, we haven't any bar, and if that is the sort of woman you are we don't want you. The place for you is at Yardley's, farther up the road."

HALIFAX EXPLOSION WRECKED HER NERVES

The reader will, no doubt, remember when a few years ago there was a collision in the Halifax, N.S., Harbor and one of the munition ships was blown up, causing great loss of life and laying a large portion of the city in ruins, and causing a great deal of suffering and distress among the inhabitants.

Mrs. Winfield Dill, now of Windsor, N.S., was living in Halifax at that time and went through this trying experience and the shock wrecked her nerves. She writes as follows:—"I was living in Halifax at the time of the explosion, and it wrecked my nerves so that I could not do my housework. I would take such nervous spells I would be under the doctor's care.

I saw Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills advertised, so I took two boxes, and they helped me so much I took six more, and now I am completely relieved. I can recommend them to anyone suffering from heart and nerve trouble."

To all those who suffer from nervous shock we would recommend our

Discover New Uses For Ultra-Violet Rays

Method Found of Analyzing Drugs, Paper and Linen

Remarkable new uses are being found for the ultra-violet rays which have already been employed for ripening fruit, increasing plant growth, and for sterilizing milk and drinking water.

The rays are invisible, but they possess the power of making certain substances glow in the dark. At a recent demonstration in London a powerful beam of ultra-violet rays was thrown in a darkened room upon the audience, who discovered that their teeth glowed with a blue fluorescent light—false teeth showed as black—and the finger nails and eyes glowed as well.

Many new properties of the rays are being studied. In one case a method has been discovered of producing synthetic formalin and sugar by their action on water and carbonic acid, while an entirely new method of analyzing rare drugs, and more particularly different samples of paper and linen, consists of photographing the fluorescent light set up in the various substances under the influence of the ultra-violet rays.

Tour In India Was Great Strain

Too Long and Ambitious for Prince of Wales

Letters from various quarters in India, dealing with the tour of the Prince of Wales, all agreed that the strain of the tour has affected the health of the Prince, and that when he left India he was perilously near a nervous breakdown. The tour was really too long and ambitious, and the political situation was an additional complication which must have added to the strain. The Prince, moreover, with his restless energy and his insatiable desire for exercise, imposed a further strain on himself and did not allow for the effect of the Indian climate on his physique. He is now en route home. A quiet voyage should restore him to full health again.

B.C. Receives Settlement Inquiries

Under the scheme for the reduction of the Indian Army about two thousand war-time subalterns and captains will receive fairly substantial gratuities and other compensation according to their rank in the service, as well as being granted free passages for themselves and families to any British Empire port. The India Office has directed settlement inquiries to the Dominion and Colonial authorities and the Canadian Superintendent of Immigration urged the advantages of British Columbia, whilst the Agent-General for that province recommended a project in the Okanagan Valley. Officers from British Columbia are in India to advance the scheme.

Took No Chances

"Well," said the happy bridegroom to the minister at the conclusion of the ceremony, "how much do I owe you?" "Oh, I'll leave that to you," was the reply. "You can better estimate the value of the service rendered." "Suppose we postpone settlement then—say for a year. By that time I shall know whether I ought to give you one hundred dollars or nothing." "No, no," said the clergyman, who was married himself, "make it five dollars now."—Boston Transcript.

THIN BLOODED PEOPLE

Need a Tonic to Enrich the Blood and Restore the Health.

Some people have a tendency to become thin-blooded, just as others have an inherited tendency to rheumatism, or to nervous disorders. The condition in which the blood becomes so thin that the whole body suffers, comes on so gradually that anyone with a natural disposition in that direction should watch the symptoms carefully. Bloodlessness, or anaemia, as the medical term is, can be corrected more easily in the earlier stages than later. It begins with a tired feeling that rest does not overcome, the complexion becomes pale and breathlessness on slight exertion, such as going up stairs, is noticed.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a home remedy that has been most successful in the treatment of troubles due to thin blood. With pure air and good food these blood-enriching pills are the correct treatment when the symptoms described are noticed. The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind is shown by the statement of Mrs. M. Chase, of Trenton, Ont., who says:—"I can highly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all who suffer from anaemia and nervous exhaustion. For three years I was nearly always troubled with headaches, and until I began taking these pills no treatment seemed to do more than give me temporary relief. I had read of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were doing for others and finally decided to try them myself. I further decided to give them a fair trial and kept on taking them regularly for several months and I am glad to say have derived permanent relief. I feel that I can safely and honestly recommend this wonderful medicine."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail, at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Livestock Prices Reviewed

Big Drop in the Prices of Livestock During Past Two Years

The drop that has taken place in the prices of livestock during the past two years is vividly illustrated by the Dominion Livestock Branch reports of the average prices for the month of April, this year, and in 1921 and 1920. It is not necessary to go any further than Toronto to realize this and, therefore, the prices of that market are referred to, accompanied by the remark that a similar state of affairs was shown in Montreal and elsewhere. In Toronto the average price for good steers in 1920 was $13.62, as against $7.70 this year; for heifers, $12.95, against $7.51; for cows, $10.75, against $5.73; for bulls, $10.55, against $4.84; for calves $16.45 against $7.26; for hogs $20.15, against $13.43; for lambs, $18.65, against $13.55; and for sheep, $10.73, against $6.50.

Germans Cannot Be Trusted

Have Made and Broken Many Treaties With France

The famous "scrap of paper" which the Germans tore up when they invaded France through Belgium, was only one of a series of treaties and promises that they have made with France—and afterwards broken.

These treaties date right back to 100 B.C., when France was invaded by 300,000 Germans, who pushed many miles over the frontier before they were stopped and defeated. They sued for peace and promised never to invade the country again.

But again and again they have broken their solemn pledges, and have invaded France forty-three times in under two thousand years.

Fur Sales Total Over Million

Total sales approximating a million and a half dollars were reported by the Canadian Fur Auction Sales Company at the conclusion of the three days' fur auction at Montreal. A record attendance of buyers marked the sales, these being present from coast to coast in Canada, from every important fur centre in the United States, whilst many English and French firms were represented. A total of 2,225 lots of furs were disposed of in twenty-four hours selling time. The fall sale will commence on September 12th.

Smallest Gold Coin

Minted at Geneva, Weighs Less Than Postage Stamp

The smallest gold coin in the world has just been minted at Geneva for the use of the League of Nations. Though called a franc, it has nothing in common with the familiar French coin, being worth only about one penny in British money. It is octagonal in shape, and on one side are engraved the initials "S.D.N."—Societe des Nations. So tiny is the coin, however, that the letters can be read only by the aid of a powerful magnifying glass, while its weight is less than that of an ordinary postage stamp. The gold franc is not intended for general circulation. It represents the unit of universal value in which the forthcoming budget of the League of Nations is to be calculated. Its actual weight is given officially as .03225805 of a gramme.

Spare the children from suffering from worms by using Miller's Worm Powders, a most effective vermifuge with which to combat these insidious foes of the young and helpless. Success and Failure

Men Who Get Along Will Not Stay Down

The difference between the genius and the ordinary man is not that the genius never falls down, but that he won't stay down. He always gets up again. The difference between success and failure in life lies just there. Success depends upon our ability to get up when we are down. It's the comeback that counts. In other words the quitter gets nowhere. That rich neighbor of yours, that successful man, has had and still has, his financial reverses. He doesn't talk about them, for he knows that nothing succeeds like success, so he advertises his successes to his friends, his enemies, even to himself. He ignores his failures.

Somebody, a few days ago said, "the man who sticks never gets stuck."

Two Interesting Letters

Toronto, Ontario.—"When my husband was called back to England in 1914 I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to strengthen me so I could work. I had a trouble that used to make me weak, but I am able to do my work now and am perfectly satisfied with your medicine. I still get it at the chemist's and I strongly recommend it to anybody I hear of suffering as I did. You may publish this if you wish."—Mrs. E. Hornblower, 899 Yonge St., Toronto, Ontario.

I Did Not Feel Like Working

"I was in a general run-down condition with a weak back and a tired feeling so that I did not feel like working. My mother was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and recommended it to me, so I have taken it and my back is better and I am now able to do my work. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my neighbors and you may publish my letter."—Mrs. Josephat A. Grenier, Box 47, Carbon, Alberta.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be taken when you first notice such symptoms as nervousness, backache, weakness and irregularity. It will help you and prevent more serious trouble. Give it a fair trial.

Will Publish Information Regarding Copper Eskimos Of Coronation Gulf Area

Curious stories of strange people dwelling in the Canadian Northland abound in Volume XII. of official reports on the Canadian Arctic expedition 1913-18. The volume which will shortly be issued, is the work of Dr. Jenness, ethnologist with the southern party of the expedition. It deals with the little-known Copper Eskimos of Coronation Gulf. It tells of their life, their language and their religious beliefs, of their dwellings, their dance halls (built of snow blocks), their food, how they marry and are given in marriage, of their amusements, their psychology and morality, of the mysterious influence of the Shaman—"the mediator and intercessor between the living Eskimos and the supernatural world of shades and spirits."

There have been various explorations of the Copper Eskimos' country since Samuel Hearne travelled overland with a party of Chipewyan Indians to the mouth of the Coppermine River in 1771. Sir John Franklin visited them thirty years later. But it was not till 1916 that the Copper Eskimo first came into conflict with civilized law. Then a Northwest Mounted Police patrol visited the Eskimos and arrested the murderers of two Catholic missionaries who were tried in Edmonton and Calgary.

The report, which is exhaustive, closes with words of warning. It observes that rapid changes are taking place in the culture of the natives. Implements of iron and steel; rifles, fish nets, open boats, European textiles and sewing machines, European foods, cheap musical instruments and the development of trapping at the expense of hunting and sealing will effect a complete transformation in the course of a few years. "Already," says Mr. Jenness, "the new culture elements and new culture teaching that are filtering from the west have profoundly modified their social and religious ideas, and before the present generation passes away, the primitiveness of the Copper Eskimo will have ceased to exist. How many will remain by that time, and whether they will be able to take part in the development of the region depends largely on the manner in which we fulfill our trust. For in throwing open their country to outside invasion we have incurred a heavy responsibility towards the natives. We may increase the security of life among them by checking infanticide and murder, we may protect them from unscrupulous exploitation and from the ravages of intoxicating liquors, but all this will be of little avail unless we immediately take measures to secure them against the introduction of our diseases. The epidemic influenza in 1918 exacted a terrible toll among the Eskimos of Northern Alaska, several settlements being practically wiped out. The Copper Eskimo have no diseases of their own, or, at least none were known up to 1916; but white men and Western Eskimos are flocking into their country, and in a few more years perhaps they will fall victims to some of the scourges of our civilization. It may be impossible to prevent this calamity entirely, but at least we could do something by checking a kind of quarantine such as the Danes have done for Greenland. At the present time, the only practicable route into the Copper Eskimo country is by way of the Mackenzie River, and if no one were allowed to go eastward without a certificate from a medical officer it might be possible to save these natives from the worst of our diseases and a more or less speedy extinction."

Pleasure in Work

Keeping Busy is Better than Being an Idler

I lately received a letter from one of the big business men of this country which contained a significant sentence. He was speaking of vacations, of experiences on private cars and yachts, and the great "pleasure" resorts of the country, adding that he didn't greatly care for them. "After all," he continued, "there is no place like the old shop, with the wheels whizzing." Millions of our best and most useful men find pleasure in the old shop with the wheels whizzing. That is where men properly belong. And if they are fairly successful, useful and respectable, they find more pleasure in work than the idlers and spenders find in the big expensive resorts.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Collecting Debts

When a man owes you a large debt—so large that he is wondering whether he can ever pay it—there are two ways of handling him. One is to leave him sweating on the Anxious Seat. The other is to fetch him into the private office, cheer him up, tell him you know he is honest and industrious and will pull out of this pinch all right in the end, and you mean to give him all the help you can. Waiving considerations of humanity or good-breeding, the second method is by far the more expedient if you hope to get your money back.—Boston Globe.

Kept Money in Province

Total sales of British Columbia Government-assisted industries during 1921 amounted to $1,560,584, which sum represents the value of goods which otherwise would have been brought into British Columbia from outside and for which an equal amount of money would have been sent out.

Memorial for Airmen In Westminster Abbey

Window Overlooks Tomb of Great Britain's Unknown Warrior

British officers and soldiers who died in the air service of the Great War has been given a permanent memorial in Westminster Abbey through the generosity of Mrs. Lewis Bennett, of Wheeling, West Virginia, whose only son was killed in France in 1918 while acting as pilot with the British forces.

The memorial, which was dedicated with impressive services by the dean, consists of a stained glass window with allegorical figures symbolic of the sacrifice of aviators, and it contains a figure of the Archangel Michael, who has become known as the patron saint of airmen.

The window is in the west part of the nave, directly overlooking the tomb of Great Britain's unknown warrior, and its inscription reads: "To the glory of God and with proud and thankful memory of those members of the British flying service who fell in the Great War of 1914-1918."

An Old Garden

Plot Has Been in London at Least 2,500 Years

In a crowded part of the City of London there is one little spot where vegetables and fruit are grown with excellent results, a spot that has never in London's long history been built over, that has never had pipes laid underneath it and that as far as records tell, has been a garden for at least 2,500 years.

The gardener still occasionally digs up pieces of Roman pottery and brick and relics of an even earlier age.

All round the garden the ground has been dug up over and over again for sewers and gas pipes and electricity cables to be put down, but the garden itself has never been disturbed. On every side tall buildings hem it in, yet it has always managed to escape the builder.

Down the court in which the garden lies, Nevill's Court, Fetter Lane, people often pause just to see the spring blossoms or the flowering currant bushes or the creeper turning red in autumn.

It is a little oasis of pleasantness amid the great city's bustle and grime.

Holdings and Exports Of Butter and Cheese

Holdings of Dairy Products Show Marked Decrease

Statistics furnished in the Dairy News Letter issued by the Dominion Dairy and Cold Storage Branch show that the holdings on April 1 of this year in all Canada were: Of creamery butter 2,226,157 lbs., against 2,396,123 on the same date last year; of dairy butter 193,864 lbs., against 455,169 lbs.; of cheese 4,330,400 lbs., against 1,143,252 lbs.; and of oleomargarine 164,285 lbs., against 305,360 lbs.

The same News Letter shows that in the first three months of this year the United Kingdom imported from Canada 61,205 cwt. of cheese as compared with 513,831 cwt. from New Zealand. The latter country's export of butter to Great Britain had more than doubled the first three months of this year over the same period of last year. Australia also shows considerable increase in exports both of butter and cheese.

Hungary Will Fulfill Obligations

Agrees to Deliver Cattle Under Peace Treaty Terms

The threat of coercive measures has brought Hungary to terms in the matter of delivery of cattle under the reparation terms of the peace treaty.

The Hungarian Minister in Paris has notified the Reparation Commission that his Government promises to fulfill its obligations without further delay.

The commission has accordingly advised the Allied Governments to suspend action against Hungary. May 10 was the latest date allowed Hungary for delivery of the first instalment of livestock.

Home Owners

No other country in the world shows such a high proportion of home owners in the larger cities as does the Dominion of Canada. Some interesting evidence on this subject has been supplied to the MacLean Building Reports, Limited, by the assessment departments of ten leading Canadian cities. By these figures the total number of residences is 364,364, and the number occupied by owners total 128,882; occupied by tenants 235,482; the ratio of house ownership is, therefore, 35 per cent.—Financial Post.

Saskatchewan Coal May be Needed

It is anticipated that if the strike of the coal miners in Alberta is of long duration there will result a very material increase in the summer output from the lignite mines in Southern Saskatchewan. This coal is a class which can readily be used for power house purposes and there is likely to be a considerable demand, both in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

A Little Talk On Thrift

By S. W. Straus, President American Society of Thrift

A great many people whose incomes are small excuse themselves from practicing thrift on the plea that they cannot save anything and maintain a decent standard of living. While it may be true in some isolated cases that circumstances over which they have no control make it impossible for them to get ahead in the world, these instances are exceptional and often a temporary character.

The old saying that, "where there's a will there's a way," applies with full force to the practice of saving money. Those who do not save or who think they cannot are, to a great extent, not honest with themselves. They are unwilling to make certain sacrifices. Their minds are biased by false pride or egotism. Their viewpoint is incorrect. If they would give the problem sufficient study they would be able to find ways by which they could save something even though the amounts be very small.

And upon one's ability to find such ways of saving money, depends one's chances of success in life.

This is a phase of the matter that should be given the deepest consideration.

If you cannot find a way of saving money out of your present income, you lack the quality of success.

Success in life is largely a matter of will power, and the man who cannot stiffen his spine and set his jaw with sufficient resoluteness to say, "I will save" lacks the power of overcoming those obstacles which lie in the pathway of every successful person.

Also it must be borne in mind that those who do not take sufficient interest in their own welfare to lay by a certain portion of their earnings for the future do not care enough about real success ever to achieve any substantial place in the affairs of men.

Before there can be success there must be a desire to succeed; and this desire must be so deep that it overcomes above every barrier.

Saving money, therefore, cannot be judged by the amount involved. Its true value lies in the effect it has on the mind and on the character.

Britain Changing Hands

Many Thousands of Acres Sold in Last Few Years

It is not only England that is "changing hands," according to the writer of a most interesting article in the Times, but Scotland and Wales as well. The announcement of a single firm of estate agents in a recent issue of the world's most famous daily journal offered for sale a total area of 79,000 acres. One famous mansion included in the list, Holme Lacy, has been divested, by a series of sales in the past few years, of most of the land that formerly made it rank as one of the largest territorial domains in the country. There remains for sale only a mere trifle of 343 acres.—Overseas Daily Mail.

A Big Man

An example of gigantism was recently exhibited in Hungary; a Russian peasant thirty-four years old, who is nine feet three inches tall and who weighs 458 pounds. His hand is one foot one inch long from finger tip to wrist; his chest measures fifty-six inches, and his head is twenty-five inches round. Like Dickens' "fat boy" he spend a large part of his time in sleep. When he is awake his motions are slow and deliberate.—Youth's Companion.

Alleged Activities of Ex-German Soldier

Posed for Some Time as Belgian Military Officer

Belgian newspapers have been giving details of the alleged activities of an ex-German soldier name Stephan, who has been passing as a Belgian military officer with an audacity comparable to that of the notorious Captain von Koepenick.

During the war he was captured and taken to the prisoners' camp at Auvours, but on the signing of the Armistice he succeeded in convincing the Belgian authorities that he was a native of Malmedy and was released. One day, posing as the Grand Marshal of the Belgian Court, he rang up the Army Photographic Service and ordered 250 portraits of King Albert, which were duly delivered to him and which he disposed of at the current price for such reproductions.

A little later he is depicted as having been the leading figure in a public military ceremony at Coblenz, where, armed with forged papers describing him as Major de Beney, of the Belgian army, he actually conferred the Belgian Military Medal on General Allen, in the presence of a large body of United States troops. After the ceremony, on one pretext or another, he borrowed considerable sums from various United States officers and then disappeared.

He is next heard of at Constantinople, where, still posing as Major de Beney, "on a special mission," he was received with great ceremony by the Sultan, the Grand Vizier, and other Court dignitaries, and received a number of valuable presents. Here, one day, he was arrested by the British—the reason is not stated—and sent to the officer in charge of the British headquarters. He, however, is said to have addressed the British officer with such audacity and to have complained of his treatment with such warmth that the officer expressed his regrets and ordered his immediate release.

Head Hunters of India

Prince of Wales Saw Strange Collection in Singapore

The Prince of Wales visited Singapore in the Malay States on his way home from India.

Driving up to the Government House he passed what our correspondent calls the strangest collection of head-hunters, pirates and savages that were ever lined up. . . . From British North Borneo came men armed with parangs hilted with carved ivory, and plumed, each one, with human hair; and their chests and backs protected by armour of python scale or clouded leopard, or mere goat or fish skin, with scales as big as those of tarpon. . . . Dyaks were there, naked for the fight save for loin-cloth and garters of horse hair and hammered brass wire, but ready for any man behind their curved and arabesqued shields and tufted spears. Many of the men bore traces of feudal strife, and nearly all were heavily tattooed. In the midst of this untutored barbarism stood a group of about twenty women, charmingly attired in scanty bands of russet silk weighted with gold."

The young lady, instead of a fan, carried the brightly decorated skull of an enemy who had been put out of the way. Curious tastes in ornaments these Dyak ladies!

For Starving Russian Children

Issued by the Canadian Committee Save the Children Fund

If every person in Canada only gave one cent to the Save the Children Fund, it would mean a total contribution of $900,000; to date Canada has only contributed an amount equal to less than one-half a cent for each of her population. Considered in this light, her contribution looks very small. This is said to bring out the point that only a comparatively small number of people have contributed to this most worthy cause. It is a movement with which all people should be identified. To neglect it is to ignore a fine opportunity for the rendering of good service. A more deserving appeal was never made to this generation of Canadians. Send your contribution without delay to Sir George Burn, treasurer of the Save the Children Fund, Ottawa, or forward it through your local organization or bank.

The treatment of cancer is becoming more efficient by use of the higher penetrating X-ray, speakers declared at the Mid-Annual Convention of the Radiological Society of North America.

Although radio specialist throughout the world have been experimenting with higher penetrating Roentgen rays for some years it is only recently that tangible results, showing more efficient treatment, have been obtained, the physicians said.

Britain Coming Back Strong

Is Making Sure Recovery from Effects of War

H. W. Sturdley, the new vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, Stratford, Ont., who had just returned from England and the continent, spoke briefly on conditions as he found them overseas.

"There is only one place in the old country where people are dying to live," said Mr. Sturdley, "and that's Ireland. The Scotch have lost none of their native wit and aggressiveness. The war has not decimated or weakened them.

"Britain is coming back strong," said Mr. Sturdley. "I am glad there is deep water between the British Isles and the continent. Something desperate may happen on the continent, but the English, Scotch, Irish and Welsh are coming back to their own. In six months I think you will see John Bull, on the job again all over the world just like he was before the war."

"The workers and employers are getting together. While there are still lots of conferences and arguments the necessity of getting down to work is realized and in six months Britain will show the world that she is not dead yet." Mr. Sturdley stated that Britain could easily spare ten million of her population who could be desirable immigrants for Canada to secure.

Will Allow Tall Buildings

London's Skyline is to be Raised Twenty Feet

Opposition of the city authorities of London to the erection of tall buildings now seems to have ended, or rather is rapidly passing. Convinced that tall buildings are safe and a commercial advantage, the London County Council, which holds the power to regulate things in the English capital, has decided to allow structures of large area to be built 80 feet high. This is twenty feet higher than the maximum height now permitted. The decision is the result of a report made by a commission appointed by the Council to study the question of taller buildings in London. The commission reported in favor of greater height. Every progressive city in the world has skyscrapers.

Although the commission reported favorably and the council thought that London should be allowed more than 60 feet building height, the fire brigade was consulted. The head of the fire-fighting force said that the extra height would not interfere with the efficiency of his force.

With everyone favorable to taller buildings, it now seems certain that London's skyline will be lifted higher than it has ever been before.

Wise Walking

Choose Companions Who Know More Than You Do

In spite of himself a man takes on the character of his surroundings. Environment very largely makes us or breaks us. Travel with rogues and you will become like them. Consort with wise men and you cannot help taking a certain amount of their wisdom. "He that walketh with wise men shall be wise." None of us can afford to miss the advantage of association with those who know better than we do. The trouble is too many of us want to shine in our own feeble way and are so fond of being big toads in the little puddle that we miss the advantages of contact with those who are able to increase our wisdom. Cut out wasting your time with those who have nothing to give you. Rub against those that are sure to brighten not dull the wits you have. "The companion of fools shall be destroyed." There is nothing more certain than the end of the fellow who picks for his company those whose aim is to shuffle through life.—Solomon in the Furniture Journal.

Exchange in Europe

Humorous as well as remarkable are some of the stories of the fluctuating rates of exchange in European money.

An Englishman on his way from Germany to Switzerland bought a bottle of wine for 500 crowns in the Austrian Tyrol. After drinking the wine he kept the bottle, and on crossing the Swiss border, sold it for fifty centimes. A Swiss fifty-centime piece is worth 700 Austrian crowns, so that the Englishman not only got his wine for nothing, but made 200 crowns.

Land for Reforestation

Simcoe County, Ontario, has formally inaugurated its reforestation policy by buying 1,000 acres of sandy land, unfit for agriculture, 10 miles north of Barrie, at a cost of $7,500. Six hundred thousand year-old seedlings of Scotch pine will be eventually planted. Of the young trees, about three years old, 30 acres will be set out this year and in the succeeding years 100 acres annually will be planted until the whole thousand acres are taken up.

Diversified Cropping Systems Remove Many Obstacles In Western Dry Sections

Diversified cropping systems and a close study of climatic and soil conditions in selection of crops and cultural methods was strongly emphasized as the important feature in crop production by Prof. G. H. Cutler, University of Alberta, in an address before the Edmonton Board of Trade.

The speaker declared that there were almost unlimited possibilities in field crop production in the province, but with the wide variation in moisture supply, nature of the soil, etc., the system of farming employed to get the greatest crop returns must necessarily coincide with the existing conditions.

Although moisture was a limiting factor, the speaker emphasized that suitable cropping systems was removing some of the obstacles in some of the drier sections. Where wheat and other cereal crops fail or partly fail because of too early or too late rains, the farmers could then fall back on crops that do not suffer from these conditions. Such crops were winter rye, winter wheat and where conditions were suitable such crops as clover, millet and sunflowers, which to a certain extent could utilize moisture that is quite as likely to come out of season as in season. The system, the speaker contended, must be adapted to the conditions and not the conditions to the system.

Speaking of summerfallow, the speaker pointed out, that while it has its faults, it still was a most important factor in the dry areas, but its results pointed to a reduction of returns, soil drifting and land ruin. As evidence of this statement, the speaker pointed out that thousands of acres had been lost and are being lost by soil drifting as a result of intensive cultivation and the one crop system farming including summerfallow. Figures given indicated that as a result of 23 years of this single crop farming including 14 crops and 9 summerfallows, had depleted the soil of one-third of the nitrogen content by actual test.

There was no alternative for summerfallowing. It conserves moisture and moisture is essential, but it is advisable to put back the humus. Less excessive fallowing and a thin cover crop of oats, rape or winter rye on the fallow was suggested. In extreme cases to plow in a green manure crop may have to be resorted to.

Legume crops, the speaker pointed out would help to keep up the nitrogen supply.

Opera in Odessa Well Patronized

Many People Attend While Others Starve in Streets

It costs 25 cents, the price of two pounds of bread, for an entire loge at the Odessa opera. The musicians wear gloves while playing their instruments to keep their fingers from freezing in the heatless halls, but the music is exceptionally good.

Long lines of scrawny people wait in line daily before food stations and many are to be seen lying in the streets too weak from hunger to solicit food, yet the opera house is well patronized. The bill at a performance witnessed by the correspondent was the Hugenots. The voices were good and the costumes—hang-overs from more prosperous days—were as good as many seen in American opera houses.

Several performances are given each week in a varied repertoire of Italian, German, Russian or purely local Ukraine operas.

Inventor of Moving Picture Machine Perfects Marvellous Discovery

Moving pictures now may be transmitted by radio from a central broadcasting station into the homes of the people, or happenings on the other side of the world may be flashed into newspaper offices notorious criminals may be exhibited in one central station and their likeness shown to the police in every city, town and hamlet of the world instantaneously.

This announcement came from the laboratory of C. Francis Jenkins, who, for more than twenty years has been working on this idea, along with other moving picture inventions. He now holds the Elliott Cresson gold medal, awarded by the Franklin Institute of America, as the originator and inventor of the moving picture machine.

Giant Railway Engine

What is claimed to be the biggest and most powerful railway engine on any English railway has just been completed at the works of the Great Northern Railway Company at Doncaster. It is of the Pacific type. The same works have also just turned out a twin sleeping coach claimed to be the longest used on any British railway. The length is 115 ft. 6in. and the total weight 62 tons, ten berths to each coach.

Railway News

Quebec.—Probably the most fragile and interesting consignment yet given into the keeping of the Dominion Express Company is one which will come shortly on a Canadian Pacific Steamships freighter from London.

Two tiny baby kangaroos are to be passengers on the ship and will brave the North Atlantic on their long journey from the London Zoo to Toronto which is their ultimate destination.

The tiny passengers are coming over with the compliments of the London Zoo authorities who were indebted to Toronto last season for the addition of two very young Canadian beavers to their collection.

The kangaroos will be accompanied by a special attendant, who will strive to do his best for the little tots and land them in good condition.

Port Arthur. — The International Union of Hungry Hoboes, in so far as its membership affects Port Arthur and Fort William will suffer a depletement in its ranks this summer. At Navilus the first station east of Port Arthur, there are located a couple of plain clothes policemen who are gathering the 'bos into the long arms of the law. One day the officers brought seven knights of the road into Port Arthur. Hunting was good during next day, too, when a party of nine arrived on Number One to keep the others company. In Port Arthur Police Court each was fined $20 or one month in prison. They were taken to the jail.

When a 'bo drops off a freight at Navilus he is least expecting to meet a guardian of the law. That is why it is stated the Canadian Pacific Railway has put constables there to gather in the members of the ride-for-nothing clan.

Vancouver.—The Canadian Pacific Railway has inaugurated its new "Empress Special" train service between this city and Chicago. Little more than an hour after the "Empress of Asia" arrived the special train pulled out for the east, carrying about fifty passengers, who took advantage of the new service. The schedule of the train calls for the delivery of the passengers in Chicago in seventy-two hours and those who are going to the Atlantic will be able to catch their boats there for the Old Country in quicker time than ever before. The equipment of the special consisted of two standard sleepers, an observation, and a baggage car. Extra equipment was also attached to the Imperial Limited to accommodate the large number of passengers who crossed the continent by the All-Canadian route.

Toronto.—D. C. Coleman, vice-president of the western lines, Canadian Pacific Railway, and just back from a tour to the coast, speaks optimistically of conditions in British Columbia.

"General business in the west is improving," he continued. "There is a return of confidence since the seeding has been done, and the result has been, not a marked, but a very steady improvement.

"British Columbia is rapidly forging ahead. Although the domestic market for timber is not up to normal, the increase in export to foreign countries is encouraging. The mining industry is going full blast. Smelters are in operation everywhere in the mining districts, despite the low price of copper. More than seven million bushels of wheat were shipped from Victoria during the past year. Three fifths of this went to Great Britain, and the balance was shipped to the Orient.

Montreal.—The new C.P.R. steamship "Empress of Australia" sailed on her first voyage from Greenock, Scotland, where she was built, for Vancouver via the Panama Canal, on Friday, June 16. She is a twin-screw steamship of 21,400 gross tons, 590 feet in length, 75.2 feet in breadth, and 41.5 feet in depth. She was ordered before the War broke out and was in the builders' hands when hostilities commenced. Since the conclusion of the War she has been converted into an oil-burner. Her equipment and standard are similar to the equipment and standard of the "Empress of Scotland." She is scheduled to arrive at Vancouver about July 10, and will leave on her first regular voyage to the Orient on July 27. Capt. Samuel Robinson, R.N.R., former commander of the "Empress of Russia," has been given command of the new vessel.

Mr. W. N. Tilley has been appointed a Director of the Canadian Pacific Railway to fill the vacancy created by the death of Sir John Eaton. Mr. Tilley has been actively engaged in railway legal work since 1914. He is going to London, England, immediately to appear before the Privy Council as one of the Counsel for the Canadian Government in the Grand Trunk Award Case. Mr. Tilley was born in Bowmanville, Ontario, in 1868, and called to the Bar in 1894.

AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL A BUSY PLACE

The fight against the grasshopper proceeds apace. The mixing station here is located in the blacksmith department of the School of Agriculture. The station is equipped with two mixing machines, driven by a gasoline engine. Some days more than 500 sacks of poison have been prepared and delivered. Will Sanders and his staff of two or three men have merited the compliments paid them, for doubtless, the efficient way in which the station is being handled, has made it possible to keep the hopper menance under control pretty well over a large area, east and west and north to Standard.

Doubtless some are falling down by not using the mixture at all and others by handling it in a careless and wastefull manner, thereby creating another menance to poultry and stock but on the whole people deserve credit, for the energy and patience they are displaying in the fight. Where ever it is consistently used the mixture is effective and the enemy is gradually being brought under control. The task of securing ingredients is not an easy one, already 50 carloads of arsenic has been imported into the province and bran is being shipped in from St. Catherines, Ont., and Minneapolis, Minn, in the largest quantities available.

HIGH-MILEAGE—DOUBLE-LIFE

- Dunlop leadership in Tiredom is most manifest. Mileage records almost unbelievable are piling up all over Canada.
- The Special Mileage-Making Process, which is the basis of our Fabric Tires, has worked wonders.
- Perfect shape and balance, stronger side walls to resist curb and rut abuse, special wear-resisting anti-skid tread, etc., add the last touch to popularizing to the full a tire that has long stood in high favor.
- Dunlop "Cords" made good from their inception.
- These tires taught motorists to expect more resiliency, greater air space, larger amount of material, better carrying capacity—in short, bigger mileage; and that is the standard by which all Cord Tires are judged to-day.

CONSUMER TAKES LONG CHANCE WHEN HE BUYS FROM THE MAIL ORDER HOUSE

When you were a youngster, did you ever make a trade "sight unseen." Of course you did. What boy has not risked his jack-knife or his choicest marble for such a proposition and how often has he repented of his rash deed when he discovered what he got in the trade. He generally found that the deal turned out to the advantage of the one who made the proposition.

There is a little of the gambling instinct in the blood of nearly every man, woman and child, but even the hardened gambler likes to get a "run for his money." The sight unseen proposition doesn't appeal to him in the least. There are thousands of people, however, who would be properly indignant if they were accused of being gamblers, who every day take a chance on the greatest gamble in the world. And worse than that, they are risking their money on a "sight unseen" proposition.

When one of the thousands of persons who build up and keep up the great mail order houses the country sends his money away to pay for some article that he has selected from the mail order catalogue, he is taking a chance on getting what he expects to get. The mail order house may be perfectly honest and still the purchaser stands a chance of not getting what he expects to get. The mail order catalogues are filled with pictures that catch the eye. The discriptions are brief, as they must be when thousands of articles are to be described within the confines of one book. No matter how hard the mail order house might try to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth it would be an impossibility. The buyer is simply taking a chance.

BUYING "SIGHT UNSEEN"

How much more satisfactory it is to walk into a store in your home town and ask to see an article which you may have seen advertised in your home paper. What would anyone think of your business ability or your common sense if you walked into a store at home and said: "I saw a picture in the paper today of a suit which I liked very much. Please wrap it up. Here is the money." The merchant would think you were crazy, but it is exactly what you do every time you send an order to a mail order house. You buy "sight unseen" and you haven't a ghost of a chance of getting your money back if the article is unsatisfactory when it reaches you.

When he dragged himself and his burden out of the water he was a few yards below the stone wall where he had left his rod. He was unconscious of his own exhaustion or the blood which flowed from his hands and face where the rocks had cut him. He laid Daphne on the heather, pulled off her waders, then started to restore animation. He worked with the calm mechanical precision of a professional, and continued long after Daphne had opened her eyes and tried to tell him she was all right. He only stopped when eventually she sat upright and putting out her hands tried gently to push him away.

"You're hurt," she gasped. "There's blood all over you."

"A scratch," he replied breathlessly.

He was sitting on the ground, his arms thrust behind him, his hands on the ground supporting his body. He felt as if he had been having twelve gruelling round with the gloves. But as he looked at Daphne he began to laugh; laughter he could not control. As she sat there shivering, her wet, red-gold hair clinging to her face and falling down her shoulders, her eyes big with fear and her mouth wide open, she looked like a little child. She had changed completely. She did not look a bit like the girl who a few minutes ago had defied him.

"Please—please wipe the blood from your face," she cried.

He stopped laughing and grabbing some heather rubbed it over his face and arms. "Is that better? There are some nasty rocks in that pool—lucky you escaped 'em."

She continued to stare at him, wide-eyed, open-mouthed. She was shivering dreadfully.

"I must carry you home," he said as he rose to his feet.

But she shook her head. She tried to speak, but her teeth began to chatter so much that no word could be formed. As he bent down their eyes met . . . Her's were trying to tell him something.

They were not the eyes of a child nor were they the eyes of the girl he had grown to love. They were the eyes of a woman who had suddenly seen the veil stripped from life. She had seen death, too. But it was not death that made her look at Edward like that.

He picked her up in his arms. She vainly tried to resist. But she was as powerless as she had been when the swollen river carried her off her feet.

"Where are you taking me?" her chattering teeth managed to ask.

"Home," he replied shortly. "Hot bath, bed, bovril."

He walked up stream in the direction he had often seen her go, taking giant strides. Presently he felt her arms fasten round his neck and her little head lying against his shoulder, touching his face. He was conscious of her wet hair clinging to his neck. His body thrilled.

"I want to tell you something," she whispered presently.

"Not now," he replied sternly.

"Yes, now," she said. She raised her head a little until her lips were close to his ear. "I want to apologise. I behaved like a little cad—not you—forgive me."

"It was my fault."

He felt her arms tighten round his neck. He had reached the stone wall; there was a gate. On the other side a cart track ran north and south. She told him to keep to the right and eventually he would see the house facing him.

He asked if there was anyone at home to look after her. "I suppose your father is still away?"

"No, he's at home. But he doesn't know I came out this morning. I've never caught a salmon, I wanted to surprise him. He'll be furious. He's terrible when he's angry."

Edward imagined a bookmaker would be rather dreadful when he lost his temper, but he did not say so.

"What—what are you going to tell him?" Daphne asked.

Edward paused a moment: "I shall tell him that I love you," he said deliberately.

He could feel her warm breath on his face, her lips brushed his cheek as she spoke. "I want you to tell him something else."

"Yes, what is it?"

It was a long time before she replied; then she said: "Wait a moment, the house is almost in sight."

"Well, what do you want me to tell him?" he asked.

"I want you to tell him that I love you too, Edward."

For a moment he stood quite still, then he dropped her on to her feet and putting his arms about her held her tightly, very tightly. She lay limply, abandoning herself to his fierce embrace; her head slipped back and her long wet hair hung down, golden in the autumn light, to her waist. He kissed her lips again and again. Then picking her up he laughed triumphantly and began to run with her towards the house.

Not until he was within a hundred yards of it did he look up. He saw a castle, old and grey, facing him; weather-beaten and majestic. He began to wonder if it were real and if he were not lying on the heather by the river, dreaming.

As he reached the entrance he could see into a large, stone-flagged hall, skins of wild beasts lying on the floor; heads of deer on the walls and shining armour. He walked straight in and as he did so a figure rose from the fireplace at the far end.

It was Daphne's father.

CHAPTED VI.

Edward halted as Mr. Mullaby approached. The water still oozed from his boots. Little streams of water ran down his legs. Water also dripped from Daphne.

It occurred to him that there was something rather humorous in the fact that on each occasion they met he had, in the part he played, appeared before Daphne's father more like a retriever dog than a man.

"You had better put me down," Daphne whispered. She waved a wet little arm at her father.

"Am I right in presuming that very unpleasant looking object you are holding in your arms is my daughter, sir?"

Mr. Mullaby spoke in a cold, dignified voice. Edward expected he would show at least concern and anxiety; the exhibition of temper might follow afterwards.

Slowly and carefully, as if he were balancing a Dresden china figure on the stone flagged floor, Edward put Daphne on to her feet. She gave a little laugh, then shook herself. Edward shook himself too. He certainly was in a horrible state; his breeches were torn, his stockings were down over his ankles. There were still traces of blood on his face and hands. He had forgotten to retrieve his coat and his shirt was rent in two places. Fortunately he could not see himself; he looked at Daphne and began to laugh.

First fear and then love had blinded him; but now, though of course she was just as beautiful as ever, he could not help being conscious of the ridiculous figure she made. She was shoeless and one of her stockings had come adrift. It trailed behind her on the ground; the absurd little tartan kilt clung poultice-like around her waist. Her arms and neck were bare, but her auburn hair covered her like a veil; it fell across her eyes and drops of water ran down her face.

"Yes, sir, your daughter," Edward said controlling himself. "She met with an accident while fishing—got out of her depth—she's all right now."

"Yes, she looks as if she had been out of her depth," the duke said in the same voice. "I presume you rescued her, Mr.— Mr.—"

"Mr. Lion, daddy. Don't you remember he rescued my parasol when it blew away over the yacht? Don't be angry, daddy—it was such a temptation; I made sure I'd get a fish today." She went over to her father with a gesture, but he stopped her.

"It's no use attempting to wheedle me while you're wet!"

"You are horrid," Daphne laughed. "I was never nearer death in my life." She crossed to the fireplace and bent down over the blazing peat.

"You mustn't stop there," Edward said sharply. "Hot bath, bed and bovril."

Behind her father's back Daphne blew him a kiss. "All right, bath and bovril perhaps, but no bed." She moved to the great staircase that led to a minstrels' gallery. "Daddy, you must give Mr. Lion a change of clothes and he will stay to luncheon."

The duke pulled an old-fashioned bell and told a manservant to take Mr. Lion upstairs and provide him with some dry clothes. "Of course you'll stay to luncheon?"

Edward hesitated. He wanted to stay, but the bookmaker's attitude seemed frigid, and Edward resented his apparent indifference to the danger that had threatened his daughter's life.

"I don't think I must trouble you," he said slowly. "I'll go straight back to my hotel and change."

The duke waived the suggestion aside. "I beg you will lunch with us, Mr. Lion. Moreover, I wish to thank you for the service you have rendered me."

Edward followed the servant upstairs. He did not know much about bookmakers, but this man altered all his pre-conceived notions of that peculiar race of men. He had always imagined them to be noisy, rather vulgar, but extremely hospitable. Superficially Mr. Mullaby was the antithesis of all these characetristics.

It quickly became obvious to Edward that he must be the richest bookmaker in the world. He could only imagine a millionaire renting this beautifully furnished castle.

The wardrobe which the servant spread before him consisted of a varied assortment of fine linens and rare tweeds.

When he returned to the hall it was empty, and he warmed himself before the fire. A footman brought him a glass of sherry. About ten minutes later the duke joined him and asked if he were feeling all right.

"Luncheon won't be ready for about ten minutes or so. Will you come into my study and tell me exactly what happened?"

The study was a large room with big mullioned windows which looked on to a tennis court. On the walls was a fine collection of swords and rapiers, some of them obviously centuries old; duelling pistols of every description, and boxing gloves. Edward looked at one pair of gloves curiously; evidently match gloves; they could not have weighed more than a few ounces and looked as if they had seen some service.

The duke waited until his guest was seated, then he offered him cigars and cigarettes. Edward chose a cigarette; the duke a cigar.

"Now, Mr. Lion, I shall be glad if you will tell me exactly what happened."

Edward omitted any details that in his opinion suggested that Daphne was to blame. He made the salmon she had hooked responsible.

The duke grunted. "Of course I've spoilt my daughter. She had no right to be fishing to-day at all. I never allow her to go down to the river unless she's accompanied by Duncan. May I ask how you happened to find yourself in the upper portion of the river?"

Edward lit another cigarette before replying; then he confessed that a few weeks ago he had come to the end of his beat on the Inverness water and was tempted to poach the pool above it. Daphne and the gillie had discovered him.

"It's rather curious our meeting again like that," he said reflectively.

"Very curious," the duke said dryly. "But of course you knew that the water belonged to me; you knew that we were in residence here?"

"Hadn't the faintest idea," Edward laughed. "I didn't even know Daphne's name."

The duke rose. "You have learnt her Christian name very quickly, sir!"

"Yes," Edward said. He too rose. He had not intended confessing his intention with regard to Daphne so quickly, but this was an opening he could not avoid. "Long before I learnt your daughter's name I learnt to love her," he said quickly. "One moment, let me explain how it happened before you speak, Mr. Mullaby."

Indoor Life

Spending more time indoors makes women far more subject to constipation than men.

The liver becomes sluggish and torpid, the bowels constipated and the system poisoned by impurities.

If you would get away from the myriads of ills which result from constipation, it is only necessary to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The benefits from their use are as lasting as they are prompt and certain.

Mrs. John Barry, 18 St. Amable Street, Quebec, Que., writes:

"This is to certify that I was troubled for years with constipation and tried all kinds of medicines without relief. At last my husband suggested that I try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and must say that they have given me more relief than all the medicine I have taken during the last fifteen years. I may also add that I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for piles with excellent results."

The Wishing Fairy

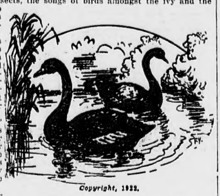
by Corinne

LAST week's story told about the wicked Prince Carl and his wife, the Princess Elsa, who plotted to kill an old man who had come to them for shelter and to rob him of the sack that he had told them contained the most wonderful thing in the world. They entered his room in the middle of the night, expecting to find the old man asleep. But he was not. Instead he met them at the door of his room, his hand upraised and a great light encircling him, which seemed to affect the wicked pair in such a way that they were unable to move and only heard his words as though in a dream.

"The moat surrounding the castle," said the old man in a voice deep with anger, "shall be your home after this. I, who am a powerful Fairy in disguise, shall change you into two Black Swans and from this moment, so you shall remain until you are sincerely grieved for all the terrible sins you have both been guilty of and until a little child shall really love you."

Princess Elsa screamed in terror, but it was of no use; for at that instant two Black Swans with brilliant red legs and bills could have been seen in the moonlight gliding over the quiet water of the moat, had anyone been there to notice . . . but there was no one; even the mysterious old man had disappeared! Stillness of the night enveloped the castle. Had anyone been there to see they would also have noticed that great tears trickled down from the eyes of the two Swans to the surface of the moat, which was now their home.

In the morning there was great consternation among all the servants and followers of the Prince and Princess! There seemed no way of finding out what had become of their master and mistress, who had apparently disappeared from the face of the earth. Every one noticed the two beautiful Swans; but neither could anyone understand their being there. They supposed that they had arrived at the moat during the night, having flown there from other countries. Soon they stopped wondering, and before long the wicked Prince and Princess were forgotten, and after some years the castle was but an ivy and vine covered pile of neglected ruins. There was no signs of life anywhere, but the hum of insects, the songs of birds amongst the ivy and the two Black Swans, who arched their shiny necks and dipped their blood-colored bills in the water; and though tears always flowed from their eyes their hearts were just as wicked as when they had been Prince Carl and Princess Elsa, and, stranger yet, they did not die after a few years, as most swans do, but lived for ever so many years.



Copyright, 1922.

"But tell me, Stella," asked Pimzie, who was just as interested in her story as were the other three Brownies, "are there really such things as Black Swans, or are they also 'make believe' like your story?"

"Oh, dear, yes!" exclaimed the Fairy. "There are. They are rare, and one doesn't see them as often as White Swans; but they do exist."

Next week's story will tell how the Swans changed and how what the old man had said happened to come true.

Germans Copied African Idea

Wooden Statue of Hindenburg Was Not Original Notion

"There is nothing new under the sun," said the wise man of old.

In a curious way (writes a correspondent) I discovered that the Hindenburg statue idea—the famous wooden imagine into which admirers drove nails upon payment of fees for war purposes—so far from being an original notion emanating from the prolific genius of Germany's money-raisers, was merely a plagiarism of a West African savage's brain-wave.

Several foreign students were standing round a case of exhibits in the British Museum brought from the Chiloango River district. Suddenly there was a burst of merriment, and I caught the words, "Little Hindenburgs! Oh, see. Savages! Idolatree!"

And there were three ugly idols, rough-carved in wood, stuck full of nails, razor blades, and other odd pieces of iron and steel. The official description read:

When a petition is made to the power represented by the figure a nail or knifeblade is driven into the latter by the petitioner.

The Hottentot women paint the entire body in patches of red and black.

Saskatchewan Sheep for Idaho

Big Shipment of Pure-Bred Animals Sent from Drinkwater

The market for Saskatchewan sheep has extended as far afield as Idaho, according to J. F. Booth, of the co-operation and markets branch of the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Booth announced that R. A. Wright, of Drinkwater, has shipped a double decked carload of pure-bred sheep to Idaho. "To build up a flock of pure-breds," said Mr. Booth, "requires skill, patience and capital. It must be very gratifying to Mr. Wright to find that his sheep are in demand in an ever-widening circle."

Ex-Kaiser Has Religious Mania

Is No Longer Interested in Germany Or Europe

Former Emperor William's devotion to religion has progressed to the point of mania, Admiral Von Tirpitz, former minister of the German navy, is reported to have told a friend recently.

The German ex-Kaiser is described as spending the greater part of each day in reading the scriptures, commentaries, sermons and other religious books and in prayer. His physical health appears to be good, but the members of his entourage at Doorn regard his mental state with some anxiety.

It is observed that his interest in European affairs has greatly diminished, even German politics finding him somewhat uninterested. His mind appears to live rather in the past than in the present, and he is disposed, whenever he does converse on politics and some one speaks of the injustice of the world, to allude with a certain melancholy and indifference to what he terms the false accusation of his having "willed the war."

England's "Mystery Towers"

Were Intended to Keep German Subs Out of Channel

The secret of England's "Mystery Towers," fourteen of which were to have been built to close the English Channel to German submarines, has been revealed by the Government's request for £80,000 to destroy one of them as useless. Since the war the Admiralty has been conducting experiments with one of these huge towers and progress has never been divulged. But recently, Lieutenant-Commander Kenworthy in the House of Commons tore aside the veil. During the latter days of the war, he explained, it was necessary at all costs to keep German U-boats out of the channel and the romantic scheme of the "Mystery Towers" was evolved. "Someone," went on Mr. Kenworthy, "hit upon the idea of making concrete and steel towers which could be towed out and sunk on certain selected sandbanks in the channel. On those towers were to be mounted searchlights and guns, and they were also to be equipped with listening apparatus—hydro-phones—for detecting submarines, and with firing apparatus for exploding mine fields through which submarines were passing.

"It was very good from the point of view of the war, but unfortunately it was hit upon rather too late." Nevertheless, two of the towers were completed at a cost of £5,000,000. One is now being used for a lighthouse and it is for the destruction of the other that the Government is asking the Commons for funds.

Vancouver Extending Exports

Further innovations in extending the exports of the Pacific port are reported. The experiment of sending frozen fish to New York, via the Panama Canal, was successful in every respect and a second ship has left with a further consignment of 350 tons for the same market. For the first time British Columbia lead and spelter has been shipped from the port of Vancouver to Europe via the Panama, and large quantities will in future go forward to Belgium and the United Kingdom.

The False and the True.

Advertising by the use of large space, the expenditure of huge sums of money have placed on the market, have put in your home, perhaps, many articles that today have been discarded, as you will readily admit.

Do you recall anything that has more modestly appealed to the public than has Fletcher's Castoria: modest in all its claims, pleading at all times—and truthfully—for our babies?

The big splurg, the misleading claims may win for a time, but the honest truth-telling advertiser is like the old story of the tortoise that beat the hare.

Mothers everywhere, and their daughters, now mothers, speak frankly, glowingly, enthusiastically in praise of Fletcher's Castoria. Speak of it lovingly as a friend that has brought comfort, cheer and smiles to their little-one.

To them: to these true mothers no argument can induce them to set aside their bottle of Castoria, their old friend, that they might try even another and unknown remedy for babies. Then, would YOU think of going to YOUR OWN medicine chest to find relief for Baby's troubles? Can you not separate the false from the true?

English Chiropodist Says Corns Prevent Rheumatism and Gout

If you want to avoid rheumatism or gout, cultivate your corns.

"Corns, bunions and almost all other callosities of the feet are merely Nature's wonderful provision for extracting from the human body the chalk that sets up rheumatism and gout."

This solace to foot sufferers emanates from Mr. T. Gillings, the well-known chiropodist, who has tended the feet of almost every judge, sheriff and lord mayor of London within the past fifty years.

"The corn," explained Mr. Gillings, "draws the chalk from the body like a magnet. Invariably when the corn or other callosity ceases to grow the twinges of gout or rheumatism are felt."—Tit-Bits.

Civilization

"What is civilization?" asks a California writer. It's where you stand on a street corner and wait for ten street cars, four hundred automobiles, fifty motorcycles, twenty-five bikes, a dozen motor trucks, a few fire engines, the police patrol, a hurry-up ambulance and a funeral to pass before you dare make a try for the opposite corner.—San Francisco Chronicle.

It Will Relieve a Cold.—Colds are the commonest ailments of mankind and if neglected may lead to serious conditions. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will relieve the bronchial passages of inflammation speedily and thoroughly and will strengthen them against subsequent attack. And as it eases the inflammation it will usually stop the cough because it allays the irritation in the throat. Try it and prove it.

A Good Battle Cry

"A Rotarian is a man who does not grab the stool when there is a piano to be moved," is the thought expressed in a recent bulletin of that organization. May Return to Germany

The return of former Crown Prince William to Germany in the near future is probable.

It is understood that the ex-Kaiser's son will give up his abode on the island of Wieringen and settle down in Germany, to live quietly as a country squire. The Berlin Government is making his return conditional on a promise that he will not engage in any political activity.

Self-Sacrifice of Japanese Peasant

Starved Rather than Eat Rice Needed For Seed

In Mr. J. W. Robertson Scott's new book, "The Foundation of Japan," we are told of a deed that deserves a place in some Golden Treasury.

"The story is that a peasant in a period of scarcity happened to be the possessor of the only unbroken bale of rice in his village. He himself suffered from lack of food, but, looking to the future, he resolved to sacrifice himself for others' good. He would not cook any of the rice because he saw that it would take away from the only store the village would have for sowing in the spring.

"Eventually he was found dead of hunger in his cottage, his head resting upon the unopened bale of rice. Who shall say that he has not a place in the brightest hero-list of those who have laid down their lives for their friends?"

"Lantern of the Dead"

To be erected on the top of the ridge of Notre Dame de Lorette, scene of some of the bloodiest fighting in the war, a lofty stone beacon to be known as "The Lantern of the Dead," is to flash nightly across the plains of Artois the memory of the 100,000 men who lie buried on the shell-scarred slopes.

The beacon, says L'Illustration, will be an important feature of a great memorial chapel which it is proposed to build on the battlefield.

Fish from Manitoba

Lake Winnipeg, Manitoba, is expected to produce upward of 1,500,000 pounds of whitefish this season, in addition to a large catch of pickerel, jackfish and tulibee. The coarser fish are exceptionally plentiful this season. Lakes Manitoba and St. Martin are also being fished extensively.

Seal Catch Increased 20 Per Cent.

The Newfoundland sealing season has closed with the arrival back in port of the sealers Ranger and Thetis, the last of the fleet to return from the sealing grounds. The total catch this year was about 126,096 pelts valued at about $200,000, approximately twenty per cent. greater than that of last year.

London, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription saved my life years ago and for that reason I am most enthusiastic in my recommendation of it to women who are ailing and weak. I was taken with the measles when in an expectant condition; then blood poisoning set in and my family became greatly alarmed. The doctor advised them to give me Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and I took several bottles of it and was restored to absolutely perfect health. I later took Favorite Prescription as a tonic and nervine and received great benefit from it. As a woman's medicine it is unequalled."—Mrs. Jennie Dalton, 767 York St.

A Vanishing Disease

Number of Tuberculosis Cases Are Being Gradually Reduced

A summary of the work done by the New York State Charities Aid Association during the last fifty years indicates the progress possible in fighting certain kinds of disease. The fall in the tuberculosis death rate from 129.3 per thousand in 1918 to 86.2 per thousand in 1921 is already a matter of common knowledge. The society attributes the result to more hospitals, more visiting nurses, more city dispensaries, the establishment of rural clinic service, open-air classes for tubercular children summer camps, and recently enacted state laws of which the above are sometimes the result. The great progress already made, however, seems little more than a healthy start toward actual eradication. The society announces the appropriation of between $300,000 and $400,000 a year for at least five years by the trustees of the Milbank Memorial Fund, left by Elizabeth Milbank Anderson. This money will be used for tuberculosis control. The results expected are similar to those secured in Framingham, Mass., during the last five years. There, for only $2.40 per inhabitant per year, tuberculosis deaths have been reduced 67 per cent. The Milbank trustees hope for a demonstration in pulmonary disease paralleling the fall in typhoid from twenty-seven per 100,000 to less than four per 100,000. This is close to an announcement that one of our most common and dreaded diseases can be made a rarity.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Plague of Locusts in Russia

A plague of locusts promising greater destruction than that of last year, has developed in the Caucasus, Baku, Kuban and the Crimea. It is a serious blow to South Russia's hopes for successful crops, and the peasants have mobilized to fight the pest with gasoline. Even airplanes have been utilized, being sent to drop poisonous bombs in the breeding areas.

Twenty-five years is the average life of a coin.

Monuments to military heroes are unknown in China.

Viscount Northcliffe Suspicious of Japan

Nation as Powerful as Germany Was In 1914

Viscount Northcliffe, writing personally in the Daily Mail, calls upon his countrymen to "Watch Japan." "Why," he asks, "are the Japanese people being taxed more severely than any other nation for the support of armaments," and he gives this reply to his own question: Japanese art, Japanese industry, the constant, if imitative, desire of the people for "uplift," and Japanese patriotism are very admirable, but there were two Germany's, and while Japanese Liberalism, of which Three Elder Statesmen (the Genro) are much afraid, is allowed occasional expression, I know from personal observation and information that the Pan-Japanese are as powerful today in Japan as the Pan-Germans were in Berlin in 1914. Before I visited Japan I said to one of our most distinguished authorities on the Far East—a Scotsman who had lived for years in those romantic lands: "What is the obeject of Japan?" He replied: "The control of China." "And then?" "The control of the world; for who controls China could control the world."

Norwegian Colonists for Alberta

A welcome addition to Canada's population arrived at Quebec on board the Canadian Pacific steamer "Montrose" from Liverpool, in the form of over forty well-built Norwegian colonists, who were on their way to Sedgewick, Alberta, where they will engage in farming. Royal Piebes

Many English-Speaking People Are Descended from Charlemagne

Most of us have Royal blood in our veins, though we don't know it. One Isabel de Hermandois died in 1131. Twice married to nobles, she claimed descent from Charlemagne through six separate lines, and left four children whose descendants can be traced right down to the present time, with the result King George V. and Abraham Lincoln are each separated from her by twenty-six generations—an honor shared by a New York farmer—whilst George Washington is four generations nearer. A Dr. Jordan says in view of all this that, through Isabel, "the English-speaking population of the world consists of inbred descendants of Charlemagne." Now we will be really good.—Montreal Gazette.

Inventor Dies In London

Watch Manufacturer Invented Works For Keyless Watch

Lawrence Barnett Phillips, F.S.A., F.R.A.S., A.R.E., inventor, artist and author, died in London after a short illness, in his 81st year. The son of a London diamond merchant, he was formerly in buisness as a wholesale chronometer and watch manufacturer. He invented the rocking-bar keyless work for winding watches; also patent sketching boxes and palette, simplified mechanism for chronographs, simplified and perpetual calendars, and calculating machines. Since 1882 he had devoted himself to art and exhibited at the Royal Academy and other galleries in London and the country. In addition to "Horological Rating Tables," and "The Autographic Album," Mr. Phillips compiled a very useful dictionary of Biographical Reference, containing 100,000 names, with a classified index of the biographical literature of Europe and America.

Bear Attacks Mail Stage

Driver of Yukon Coach Kills Unique Mail Robber

Bill Boulet has the distinction of being the only stage driver in the Yukon who ever had to kill a mail robber. He drives a four-horse stage on the long overland route between White Horse and Dawson. Recently, what is said to be the first mail thief in the history of the Yukon, attacked Boulet's stage—and died.

It happened in Alberta, a road-house, on the long trail, where Boulet was paying an official call. Looking out of the window he saw an immense black bear on top of the coach, throwing the mail sacks to the ground and smashing express parcels. Boulet levelled his rifle and a dead bear tumbled to the ground.

The miners have now asked the Government to pool the gems and market them on community account.

RADIO NEWS

Mr. Allen, the government inspector of telephones, was here the forepart of last week and interviewed the fans on radio. He had with him a simple set that just filled a cigar box, and forthwith it was copied and now Seattle is no weaker or harder to hear than the Albertan. The Edmonton Journal is as easy to get as is Calgary. The detector bulb is all that is used. When a two stage amplification set is fully equipped with a loud speaker then we will hear things.

Next week we will give a little talk on the kinds of sets, and, perhaps, some of the principal parts of a receiving set.

HOSPITAL NEWS

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank McInelly, a daughter, June 17th.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Thompson, a daughter, June 23rd.

Master John Vinge, of Cluny, had his tonsils removed and was in the hospital four days.

Master Commodore Allen had an operation on his foot.

We had four of the children from Old Sun School, for tonsil operations. Mrs. Lyons and our housekeeper had a lively time for a little while, as we operated on them one after another in quick succession. All went home smiling and well.

Our new building is now finished and occupied. One don't need electric shocks if you build. You can get heaps of shocks gratis—that's all there is free gratis though. We had hoped to have an opening day and invite the public to view our hospital, but we had to use the new operating room and new wing almost before the paint was dry. We extend, however, an invitation to the people of Gleichen and surrounding country to come in and look around. Incidently they might bring pad and pencil to jot down cost of equipping such an establishment; then they could do much to correct the erroneous impression that we are making money fast. As a matter of fact we shall be about two years before we can even allow a salary for the matron; and what matron of any hospital would work as ours and see no salary or know when there will be one. Though some people go to out of town hospitals they do not often get nurses of mature age and experience. They too often have young nurses in training, who are learning on you. We don't have to learn on any of our patients—so the boost your own town applies as well to us as to any of the many tradespeople whose name I see in The Call this week.

Yours,
HOSPITAL SCRIBE.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Felix Corbiell who died, June 26th, 1921.

It is just one year ago, dear husband since you were called away,
Since then each minute seemed an hour and every hour a day;
The days have dragged along like months and months have seemed like years.
Sweet thoughts of you are all we've had to drive away our tears.
God only knows our lonesomeness since He took you away.
But He will give you back to us, in his eternal day.
